ACTION PROJECT

August 8, 2018

Mr. Andrew R. Wheeler
Acting Administrator
Environmental Protection Agency
1200 Pennsylvania Ave., NW
Washington, DC 20004

Dear Mr. Wheeler,

It is our pleasure to invite you to address the leadership of the Conservative Action Project (CAP).

CAP was founded by many conservative leaders in 2008 and Former Attorney General Edwin Meese III served as Founding Chairman. CAP is designed is to facilitate conservative leaders working together on behalf of common goals. Participants include the CEO's of over 100 organizations representing all major elements of the Conservative Movement-economic, social and national security.

The leadership meetings are held every Wednesday at the Family Research Council Headquarters (801 G Street, NW, Washington, DC) from 7:30-9:00 a.m. We'd love to have you join us Wednesday, September 12, 2018 from 7:30-8:00 a.m. The format is brief remarks followed by discussion and questions. It is completely off the record and confidential so that we can be candid both ways.

We believe it would be mutually beneficial to visit with you and hear about the important work you are doing at the Environmental Protection Agency and how we can be of assistance to you and the President in advancing his agenda.

Enclosed is a list of Wednesday meeting attendees, who participate either in person or by phone, but please keep the list confidential as it is not public information. Jennifer Rutledge, CAP's Managing Director, will work with your staff to find an alternate date if September 12 is not convenient for you. Please feel free to contact Jennifer or me if you have any questions. I hope you can join us soon.

Best Regards,

Alfred S. Regnery

I normally like to have talking points prepared specific to the event, but my deputy is out this week and I have been running point on AAW's West Coast Swing. Attached is their meeting request form, the accomplishments talking points, and talkers the Admin used previously with groups like these (cost benefit/ sue and settle initiatives). ACE and NSR talkers (pasted below) are fair game as well. I updated them for the public hearing yesterday in Chicago. The format is 10 min remarks, 20 minutes Q&A. Pebble will also likely arise. I emailed Jenny to see who is introducing you. Have a nice evening!

Tate

(1) Proposed Affordable Clean Energy (ACE) Rule

- Proposed in August. Now in a 60 day comment period that ends Oct. 30.
- We had a ACE field hearing in Chicago yesterday. This is our only hearing currently slated.
- EPA proposed the ACE rule which would establish emission guidelines for states to develop plans to address GHG emissions from existing coal-fired power plants.
- The ACE rule would replace the 2015 CPP, which EPA has proposed to repeal because it exceeded EPA's authority. The CPP exceeded the Agency's legal authority, which is why 27 states, 24 trade associations, 37 rural electric co-ops, and three labor unions challenged the rule. The Supreme Court eventually intervened and issued a historic stay. The CPP has never gone into effect.
- The proposed ACE rule is informed by the more than 270,000 public comments received in response to the December 2017 Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking.
- The proposed ACE rule has several components:
 - a) Defines the "best system of emission reduction" for GHG emissions from existing power plants as on-site, heat-rate efficiency improvements (i.e. inside the fence line);
 - b) Provides states with a list of "candidate technologies" that can be used to establish standards of performance and incorporated into their state plans;
 - c) Updates EPA's New Source Review Permitting program to incentivize efficiency improvements at existing power plants;
 - d) Aligns Clean Air act section 111(d) general implementing regulations to give states adequate time and flexibility to develop their state plans:
 - States have 3 years to develop a state plan

- EPA has one year to review and approve
- EPA has 2 years to develop a federal plan if a state fails to submit an approvable plan

Costs-Benefits: The Regulatory Impact Analysis calculates the benefits and costs of four different scenarios. All show future CO₂ emissions would be below current levels.

- Compared to a no CPP future, the ACE rule will reduce CO₂ emissions in 2025 by between 13 and 30 million short tons, resulting in $1.6 billion in monetized domestic climate benefits.
- Replacing the CPP with the ACE rule could result in $3.4 billion in net benefits, including $400 million annually. Under some scenarios, avoided compliance costs total $6.4 billion compared to the CPP.
- Approximately 600 coal-fired electric generating units at 300 facilities could be covered by this proposed rule.
- From 2005 to 2017, total U.S. energy-related CO₂ emissions fell by 14%. In contrast, global energy-related CO₂ emissions increased over 20%.

(2) New Source Performance Standard (NSPS) for CO₂ Emissions from Power Plants

- In 2015, EPA issued a final GHG NSPS for coal and natural gas power plants.
- For natural gas plants, EPA determined that the “best system of emission reduction” (BSER) was natural gas combined cycle (NGCC) technology.
- For coal plants, EPA determined BSER as requiring Carbon Capture and Sequestration (CCS) technology
 - EPA erroneously concluded that CCS was adequately demonstrated (i.e., technically feasible) and could be implemented at reasonable cost.
 - This standard would have prevented new coal plants from being built.
- Current Status: Early 2017, EPA announced its intent to reconsider the power plant NSPS.
- EPA is currently developing a proposal which will reconsider numerical standards for newly constructed coal-fired units by applying BSER that does not include CCS technology.
- EPA will be submitting the NPRM to OMB for review in the next several weeks.
- The proposal ensures that regulatory requirements will not be an undue burden to the future development of advanced and modern coal plants.

I wanted to follow up to see if there was any word on whether Acting Administrator Wheeler would be able to join us at the CAP meeting on September 12.

Please let me know if there's anything else you need from me.

Thanks,

Henry-

I normally like to have talking points prepared specific to the event, but my deputy is out this week and I have been running point on AAW's West Coast Swing. Attached is their meeting request form, the accomplishments talking points, and talkers the Admin used previously with groups like these (cost benefit/ sue and settle initiatives). ACE and NSR talkers (pasted below) are fair game as well. I updated them for the public hearing yesterday in Chicago. The format is 10 min remarks, 20 minutes Q&A. Pebble will also likely arise. I emailed Jenny to see who is introducing you. Have a nice evening!

Tate

(1) Proposed Affordable Clean Energy (ACE) Rule

- Proposed in August. Now in a 60 day comment period that ends Oct. 30.
- We had a ACE field hearing in Chicago yesterday. This is our only hearing currently slated.
- EPA proposed the ACE rule which would establish emission guidelines for states to develop plans to address GHG emissions from existing coal-fired power plants.
- The ACE rule would replace the 2015 CPP, which EPA has proposed to repeal because it exceeded EPA's authority. The CPP exceeded the Agency's legal authority, which is why 27 states, 24 trade associations, 37 rural electric co-ops, and three labor unions challenged the rule. The Supreme Court eventually intervened and issued a historic stay. The CPP has never gone into effect.
- The proposed ACE rule is informed by the more than 270,000 public comments received in response to the December 2017 Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking.
- The proposed ACE rule has several components:
 - a) Defines the "best system of emission reduction" for GHG emissions from existing power plants as on-site, heat-rate efficiency improvements (i.e. inside the fence line);
 - b) Provides states with a list of "candidate technologies" that can be used to establish standards of performance and incorporated into their state plans;
 - c) Updates EPA's New Source Review Permitting program to incentivize efficiency improvements at existing power plants;
 - d) Aligns Clean Air act section 111(d) general implementing regulations to give states adequate time and flexibility to develop their state plans:
 - States have 3 years to develop a state plan
 - EPA has one year to review and approve
 - EPA has 2 years to develop a federal plan if a state fails to submit an approvable plan

Costs-Benefits: The Regulatory Impact Analysis calculates the benefits and costs of four different scenarios. All show future CO2 emissions would be below current levels.

- Compared to a no CPP future, the ACE rule will reduce CO2 emissions in 2025 by between 13 and 30 million short tons, resulting in $1.6 billion in monetized domestic climate benefits.

- Replacing the CPP with the ACE rule could result in $3.4 billion in net benefits, including $400 million annually. Under some scenarios, avoided compliance costs total $6.4 billion compared to the CPP.
- Approximately 600 coal-fired electric generating units at 300 facilities could be covered by this proposed rule.
- From 2005 to 2017, total U.S. energy-related CO₂ emissions fell by 14%. In contrast, global energy-related CO₂ emissions increased over 20%.

(2) New Source Performance Standard (NSPS) for CO₂ Emissions from Power Plants

- In 2015, EPA issued a final GHG NSPS for coal and natural gas power plants.
- For natural gas plants, EPA determined that the “best system of emission reduction” (BSER) was natural gas combined cycle (NGCC) technology.
- For coal plants, EPA determined BSER as requiring Carbon Capture and Sequestration (CCS) technology
 - EPA erroneously concluded that CCS was adequately demonstrated (i.e., technically feasible) and could be implemented at reasonable cost.
 - This standard would have prevented new coal plants from being built.
- Current Status: Early 2017, EPA announced its intent to reconsider the power plant NSPS.
- EPA is currently developing a proposal which will reconsider numerical standards for newly constructed coal-fired units by applying BSER that does not include CCS technology.
- EPA will be submitting the NPRM to OMB for review in the next several weeks.
- The proposal ensures that regulatory requirements will not be an undue burden to the future development of advanced and modern coal plants.

- We are reforming how the Agency calculates the costs and benefits of its regulations:
 - The Agency has historically used questionable methods for calculating costs and benefits, oftentimes inflating purported benefits of its regulations and underestimating the true costs to the American people.
 - One of this EPA's first actions was to update the social cost of carbon estimates to conform with sound economic practices.
 - For instance, while the Obama EPA estimated the social cost of carbon to be an average of cost of $36 per ton of carbon dioxide emitted, we calculated an average $5 per ton.
 - We are also moving away from the Agency's misleading use of co-benefits.
 - Particulate Matter is the most notorious co-benefit cited by EPA. In fact, PM co-benefits accounted for more than 80% of the purported benefits of all Obama's air rules.
 - Prime examples of this include the Mercury and Air Toxics Standards (MATS) and the CPP.
 - For MATS, a rule targeting mercury, 99% of the benefits used to justify the rule were attributed to PM. With the CPP, a rule aimed at CO2 reductions, PM accounted for a majority of EPA's benefit claims.
 - Going forward, EPA owes it to the American people to provide consistency and clarity in its cost-benefit analysis. For that reason, we are taking a serious look at opportunities to codify common-sense, best practices for benefit-cost analysis in rulemaking.
 - In June 2018, EPA issued an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking to announce that the Agency would solicit public input on whether and how to change the way it considers costs and benefits.

- We are currently reviewing the more than 3,000 comments we received.

- On a similar front, we are working to ensure science transparency at the Agency.

- Sound science must be the foundation of everything we do at EPA.
- In the past, EPA has taken major actions based on hidden science. The result has been objections from the regulated community and a lack of trust in the Agency.
- In April, we issued a proposed rule that would require the Agency to ensure that the regulatory science underlying its actions is fully transparent.
- Going forward, EPA would only rely on science that is publicly available. This allows for third parties to test, authenticate, and reproduce scientific findings.
- Americans deserve to know the science guiding EPA decisions that may impact their lives, especially when it is funded with their taxpayer dollars.
- We are currently reviewing the more than 590,000 comments we received on the proposed rule.

EPA Accomplishments

- Regulatory Reform

- To date, the Agency has issued 1,475 proposed and final rules – providing regulatory certainty and relief while improving America’s environment.
- We have finalized 26 major deregulatory actions, saving Americans almost $1.5 billion. The Agency more than doubled cost-savings goals for this year and met the “2 for 1” order.
- 49 additional deregulatory actions are under development and are estimated to provide up to $100 billion in savings.

- Environmental Results

- U.S. greenhouse gas emissions [HYPERLINK "https://www.epa.gov/sites/production/files/2018-01/documents/2018_complete_report.pdf"] 12% since 2005 as economy grew by 17.5%

Henry- Thanks for agreeing to do Heritage Tuesday. The Admin had a great meeting with Mrs. James last week, their new President. Hopefully she will be in town Tuesday when we're there.

If you want to keep things rolling, you can treat Tuesday as batting practice for this (see attached) larger speaking role at the Conservative Act Project weekly meeting at the Family Research Council downtown that next Weds AM at 7:30. It is much larger in attendance and closed press. Invite only as many conservative CEO's, former members of Congress, and WH Staff attend— several of whom discussed your agency reforms with Pruitt regularly. See below where they've actually requested you in AAW's place.

The format/ attendee list is attached. Thoughts?

Hi Tate --

Thanks for the email. Please circle back to me with a Wednesday that would work with his schedule. You just let me know and we'll make it work.

If the Deputy Administrator is available let me know.

Thanks,

Hi Connie –

I don't have an agenda for the meeting but I have attached a copy of the original invitation which was sent to Acting Administrator Wheeler. The invitation explains what CAP is and the flow of the meeting, as well as includes a list of participants. I was asked to fill out the attached request form and then when the Acting Administrator could not make the meeting they suggested the Deputy. Let me know if you need additional information from me or if you would like an official invitation prepared for Mr. Darwin.

Thanks,

Jennifer

Hi there, Jennifer-

Apologies for the delay.

Unfortunately the 12th is tough on our end. However, I know this meeting is relatively flexible as it's every Weds. Might we circle back with some Wednesdays that might work in the not very distant future? In the meantime, I can see if I can find someone else from our Senior Leadership team (Air Office? Deputy Admin?) to attend next week. Would either or both of those options work for you?

Connie –

I just left you a voicemail regarding Mr. Darwin speaking at the CAP meeting next Wednesday.

I have not heard from Mr. Dickerson yet and I just wanted to be sure that Mr. Darwin was still confirmed to be with us.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Thanks,

Jennifer

Our agenda is fairly simple. Typically our guests talk for 5-10 and then we open it up discussion. That portion of the meeting last approximately 30 minutes.

Hope this helps.

Hi there, Jennifer-

Apologies for the delay.

Unfortunately the 12th is tough on our end. However, I know this meeting is relatively flexible as it's every Weds. Might we circle back with some Wednesdays that might work in the not very distant future? In the meantime, I can see if I can find someone else from our Senior Leadership team (Air Office?Deputy Admin?) to attend next week. Would either or both of those options work for you?
